Officials investigate rape claim:

Authorities are investigating a claim by a 29-year-old woman that she was raped by a guard last month while being held at the Wood County Jail. The woman, who was arrested Nov. 24 on an outstanding warrant, said she was raped before being released on bail two days later. Her lawyer contacted the county prosecutor's office with the allegation. Sheriff's Department Chief Deputy Charles Koch said his office, as well as a prosecutor's investigator and agents from the State Bureau of Criminal Identification and Investigation, are looking into the allegations.

264 injured in Amtrak derailment:

An Amtrak train in Boston derailed and slammed into a rush-hour commuter train Wednesday, injuring 264 passengers in an underground crash so violent it jolted cars into the tunnel ceiling and buckled the roads above.

"All the lights went out; people started screaming; the place was filled with smoke; a few people were trapped under seats," said Chris Good, a passenger on the suburban Stoughton Line train.

About 1,500 gallons of diesel fuel spilled and ignited after the impact, sending a dense smoke into the cars that passenger Joe Po-voas said "you could grind with your teeth; you could spit it out."

Many passengers, dazed and covered with soot, wandered out of the station, some crying, many assisted by emergency personnel.

Overall, 264 people, including four rescue workers, were hurt, said Thomas Glynn, general manager of the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority.

World

Nine scientists die in avalanche:

Nine scientists missing for four days in the Piedmontese Alps were found dead Wednesday, buried under mounds of snow from an avalanche, authorities said.

The bodies were recovered at dawn in a remote valley near Cuneo, Italy after a search by 70 rescuers and three helicopters.

The victims were part of a group of 12 speleologists, or scientists who study caves, caught in a snowstorm Sunday after exploring caves in the Alps.

Weather

Cloudy and colder:

Today, variable cloudiness and much colder with a slight chance of flurries.

High in the mid 30s. Northwest winds 10 to 20 mph. Chance of snow 30 percent.

Tonight, clear with the low around 20. Friday, increasing cloudiness with the high in the mid 30s.

Faculty health plan lacks funds for implementation

by Jennifer Today
staff writer

More than a year has passed since Faculty Senate attempted to reduce University health insurance costs by implementing the Health Promotion Policy.

Insurance rates might be lower if University employees were healthier. Components of the policy include a smoke-free campus, free medical exams and Fitwell assessments.

However, no concrete numbers exist for projecting University savings.

Even though University President Paul Olscamp said he supports this resolution, the problem of implementation is its cost.

"I support the Fitwell program and free screening for health problems, which would lead to staying healthier longer, but I don't know where the funds would come from — especially when we are facing a budget reduction," Olscamp said.

Faculty Senate Chairperson Harold Lunde said the University is not alone in its struggle with health costs.

"This is not just a University problem — it's a national one and action is needed. We need to reduce the terrible hospital and doctor bills which are cost exploding."

—Harold Lunde, faculty senate chairperson

"This is not just a University problem — it's a national one and action is needed," he said. "We need to reduce the terrible hospital and doctor bills which are cost exploding."

The Senate Executive Committee agreed to redistribute this policy to the central administration in attempt to implement the entire program, he said.

Olscamp said he does not expect to see the program fully implemented for several years since all funds are committed at this point. Nor does he expect revenue availability will change in the next two years.

Lunde said the 15-month-old resolution began with a Health Promotion Task Force to promote the health of the University community, faculty and staff.

This was expected to help contain the rising cost of hospital and medical care to the University.

Olscamp said moving toward a smoke-free campus was successful because the implementation required virtually no money, yet the other programs are costly.

Joshua Kaplan, director of student health services and a previous member of the task committee, said the screening exams are based on one's age and sex.

For example, a 23-year-old male may require a blood pressure screen, whereas a 50-year-old man may require an exercise cardiogram as well, he said.

These exams, included in the resolution, would have been given for free, but with expected budget cuts, funds are not available to begin the program, Kaplan said.

Keg clause proposed again

City committee aims for 'law enforcement, control' in BG

by Jacqueline M. Porter
city writer

Members of the Mayor's Advisory Committee again raised the possibility of mandatory registration of kegs at last night's relations meeting.

Community residents' sub-committee chairman Michael Mardsen said the sub-committee is arranging to talk to the State Liquor Control Board this week.

"The citizens want law enforcement and control in their town," he said.

Legal sub-committee representative and City Attorney Michael Marsh agreed with the proposal.

"The [keg registration] information will allow the police to recognize in advance if there will be a large concentration of alcohol at an area at one time," he said.

"This proposal is not intended to decrease sales — it's intended to help the police control underage consumption," he added.

Marsh said the proposal will require more research.

Rob Routzahn, undergraduate student sub-committee member, questioned the treatment of students in Bowling Green.

"Right now, we [the sub-committee] are taking a reactionary position — we are legal adults with the rights of adults, and we feel we aren't being treated in this way," he said.

The USG senator also disagreed with the keg registration proposal.

"This [keg registration] is wrong. It's a violation of everyone's rights and gives the police free reign over everything," he said.

"If it comes to this, we are seriously considering a boycott," of local businesses, he added.

The agreeing agencies are as follows: Newlove Realty, John Newlove Realtors, Winthrop Terrace, R.E. Management, Spitler and Violet Rentals, Carty Rentals, University Courts and University Village, and D & G Rentals, he said.

Greg Bakies, managing attorney for Student Legal Services, said he had discussed the standardized lease with Robert

Education secretary quits post

WASHINGTON (AP) — Education Secretary Lauro Cavazos, the nation's first Hispanic-American Cabinet member, resigned Wednesday after three years in office. Bush administration sources said he had tired of criticism from the White House and elsewhere.

Cavazos, 63, gave no reason about why he quit or what he plans to do, said Education Department spokeswoman Etta Fielek.

The resignation was announced at a Cabinet meeting, which Cavazos didn't attend.

Fielek said Cavazos didn't attend Wednesday's Cabinet meeting because "he's not very good at farewells, and he thought this is the most comfortable way to do it."

He is the third major administration official to resign since October. Labor Secretary Elizabeth Dole quit to join the American Red Cross, and William Bennett, head of the Office of National Drug Control Policy, stepped down and later was named head of the Republican National Committee.

Administration and education sources said Cavazos, whose departure had long been rumored, had tired of criticism both from

Resident's spouse missing in Kuwait

by Lori Miller
city writer

Before the Iraqi invasion, Pam Al-Wotaid planned to move to Kuwait with her two children, Carl and Samantha Melms, to reunite with her husband and establish a new life.

But Pam's husband Abdullah — who, as a Kuwaiti citizen, was serving his mandatory army duty — has not been seen since the Aug. 2 invasion.

Abdullah had left Bowling Green on July 21, after a four-week leave, to finish his one-year mandatory service in the Kuwaiti army.

His enlistment was supposed to be over Sept. 8 of this year.

Before she left for Kuwait, it was Pam's responsibility to sell the house and their belongings and to arrange for the move, while her husband was taking care of the final preparations for their new house in Kuwait.

Pam and her family were going to live in Kuwait permanently, because Abdullah had been hired to teach at one of the universities, after he earned his Ph.D. in sociology at Bowling Green in 1988.

The last time Pam talked to her husband, on July 31, she asked him about the rumors she was hearing of a possible invasion — but he told her not to worry about it.

Abdullah, who is in charge of the army's tank division, and the rest of the Kuwaiti army, was told by United States and Egyptian intelligence the possible invasion was only a ploy on Hussein's part.

However, on the morning of August 2, Pam received a phone call from a friend who told her Iraq had invaded Kuwait.

"I was just in shock. At first, I couldn't believe it," Pam said.

She kept re-dialing the phone, trying to call her in-laws' residence in Kuwait.

"I felt like I couldn't move from the phone. I had to get a hold of him [her husband]," she said.

Although she never reached her husband, Pam talked to her brother-in-law that day, and he assured her that Abdullah was fine.

While Pam talked to him, she could hear machine-gun fire in the background. He said the tanks moved into Kuwait at 5:00 a.m. and the fighting was still occurring.

Since the invasion, Pam has been trying to send her husband messages through Voice of America and the British Broadcasting Company but has not received any messages back yet.

Pam has not sent any messages through the American Embassy, because she has heard most of them are intercepted by the Ira-

Crime law not tough enough

Colleges and universities throughout the nation will soon find out that failing to report campus crime truly does not pay.

This is thanks to a new law which states schools will risk losing federal aid if they do not disclose their crime statistics every year beginning in 1992.

Finally, someone has acknowledged the fact that campus crime statistics are something every student or prospective student has the right to know.

This law is good, but unfortunately not good enough. Even though schools are required to report on-campus crimes, they do not have to report off-campus crimes or sexual assaults—which many rape offenders plead down to in court.

It is considered impractical to hold on-campus authorities responsible for statistics from city and other off-campus law enforcement agencies. This is fair, but these figures should be available to students who need to know if there is an immediate need to protect themselves against certain crimes.

For example, if not for the intense media coverage of the murder of five University of Florida students, the cases might never have been made public knowledge. These murders were not counted as campus crimes, because the students were killed in off-campus housing.

Campus crime does not automatically stop at school boundaries; it happens wherever students go — they are the true "campus."

If students do not know about the crime in their communities, then how can they prevent it from happening? There are too many examples of students who never got the chance to ask this question.

For example, in 1986, Jeanne Clery was raped and murdered in her residence hall at Lehigh University in Pennsylvania. Her murderer entered her room through a propped-open door.

As this and many other cases show, many crimes are committed because precautions were not taken by the students themselves.

Many of today's universities are trying to reduce campus crime by educating students about safety to try to reduce the number of incidents such as Jeanne's so they might never happen again.

According to a USA Today survey, many colleges are using more than just education to reduce campus crime. The results show that 95 percent of the 497 colleges surveyed use roving security guards, 82 percent control nonresident access to residence halls, while 85 percent provide escort services for students walking after dark.

Some colleges are doing their share to try to protect their students from unnecessary harm. Unfortunately, many are not and are trying to hide the fact by using the excuse that if crime statistics are released, their student recruitment may decrease because some schools may look better than others.

Of course, students would decide to go to a school that has shown a concern for the student body by spending time and money trying to protect them.

University administrations are not totally responsible for crimes on their campuses though, students themselves need to make the effort to protect themselves by simply being cautious.

Just by walking in pairs or groups, keeping doors locked, not propped, and making sure their home is secure, students can reduce their chances of being a victim of campus crime.

Please protect yourselves — do not become one of the statistics. Bowling Green may seem like a "safe" place to live, but crime does happen here too.

Don't let it happen to you.

Motion's defeat irritates senator

This past Monday I experienced one of the most frustrating and humiliating meetings of my tenure in the Undergraduate Student Government. This student body, sworn to uphold and protect the rights of students on this campus, basically stated that discrimination on the basis of sexual orientation is a condonable action.

For me, there can be no two ways about the issue. You either oppose discrimination, or you support it. Gays and lesbians on this campus are served notice by their most powerful student voice that from this day forward they can expect no real sympathy or support in their struggles against discrimination.

This is a sad statement indeed for the human rights of anyone, but especially for the lesbians and gays who will continue to be denied the opportunity to participate in ROTC or any other military office.

But there is another issue that needs to be addressed in relation to Monday night's meeting and a statement made by USG President Kevin Coughlin. He even stated on more than one occasion that if the resolution were to pass, he would veto it. Period.

Is that neutral? And in terms of him letting the bill run its course, there is a serious question as to his role in pushing senators against the resolution. Now this is not necessarily to knock Kevin on his politics. Times have been few and far between when he and I have agreed on anything, but let's at least be honest with the stance we take. It's a lie that Kevin is neutral on this resolution and I, for one, am calling him on it. I respect him but I must challenge him in situations where his covert actions are in direct contradiction with the image he attempts to present to the public.

Finally, I'd like to clear up a bit of confusion concerning, ironically enough, me and Kevin. Since I have been in the papers quite a bit this semester, and since he and I share at least the same first name, I've found people sometimes have mistaken me for him — calling me Coughlin rather than Turner.

It was possibly this confusion in the minds of some students that made Kevin think people wanted him to run for mayor of Bowling Green, when actually they meant for me to run. This being the case, I'd like to as well thank those people who feel enough confidence and faith in me to represent them as mayor of this town. This position is tempting, however I don't see politics and me getting along too well at this juncture of my life. Thus, I must turn down the opportunity and go my own way. Hey, I'm graduating folks.

And on that note, that's the news, and I am outta here!!

Kevin Turner is a graduating senior and USG senator.

Safety a part of everyday health

Healthy lifestyle. Fitness. Wellness. We hear a lot about ways to improve our health. Many students exercise, don't smoke or limit salt and fat in their diet — all good ways to improve your health. But unless you include safety as part of your health promotion plan, you may be missing one of the most important ways to stay healthy. The leading killer of college-age students is accidents, specifically traffic crashes involving alcohol and/or not using a safety belt.

Drinking and driving does not support a healthy lifestyle. It influences all areas of health. Consider the possibility of death or permanent disability. Or living with the memory of a drinking and driving crash that involved a friend or family member. Or being arrested. Or paying thousands of dollars in attorney's fees, court costs, rehabilitation and increased insurance if you are convicted. Or losing your job or your chance to attend school. Or calling your parents to tell them you were drinking and caused a traffic crash.

Fortunately, this is an area of your health you have control over. Unlike heredity or environmental conditions, you determine whether to drink and drive. You can choose not to drink and drive and not ride with someone who has been drinking. You can also help friends stay healthy by not letting them drink and drive. Traffic crashes are not accidents; they do not occur by chance but are often related to alcohol use.

During the holidays, you can help change the meaning of "tie one on" by tying a red ribbon to the door handle or outside rear view mirror on your car. The red ribbon campaign is sponsored by Mothers Against Drunk Driving (MADD). You can pick up a ribbon at the Prevention Center on campus to show your support for a less violent holiday season. And remember, if you really want to have a healthy lifestyle, there are two major ways you can reduce your risks: buckle up and don't drink and drive.

Mayor supports administrative decisions

Editor, The News:
The actions taken and being taken by this administration and council have been appropriate and will continue to be appropriate for providing the best possible enforcement of the laws of this city, state and nation.

The decisions of the Bowling Green Municipal Court have been released and we have taken appropriate action in accordance with the court's decisions and the written review by Judge James Bachman. The court's suggestions are currently under review and will be incorporated in future police action.

The revised mayor's city/University/student committee includes a wide variety of interested Bowling Green citizens, University staff and University students. If this committee performs in the manner outlined by the mayor, it will generate good relations between the city, the University and the students.

All employees of this city are under scrutiny by the mayor, the municipal administrator and the directors of various departments. As in the case of most businesses, universities and other groups, there are times when supervisors must correct employees.

This administration has been very open and attentive to the specific complaints from citizens. We act on FACTS and FACTS only. Where the courts are involved, we must be guided by those decisions.

We want everyone to know that we believe the police have a very difficult job and that they are contributing very greatly toward making this a safe and fine city in which to live, work, study and retire as well.

When the city/University/student committee diligently works on the challenges listed in the mayor's letter of Oct. 23, outlining the restructuring of the committee and its purpose, plus other challenges that will be identified as time goes on, ALL persons in Bowling Green should know what being a good citizen entails.

The mayor believes this city/University/student committee represents a very great range of citizen involvement in this city, and that it is capable of making recommendations to the mayor and council as any groups that can be assembled.

The mayor expects this committee to work diligently and will not support any other committee.

Edwin Miller,
Bowling Green mayor,

USG leader 'ineffective', 'unresponsive'

Editor, The News:
After reading the recent letter in defense of Kevin Coughlin, I was struck with the realization that the only people willing to attempt to rehabilitate Mr. Coughlin's administration are either freshmen or those who stand to gain from Coughlin staying in power — such as his executive assistant and a USG senator closely aligned with Coughlin. Not only are these people nonrepresentative of the student body's true feelings toward Coughlin, but they do nothing to answer the charges leveled against him in a recent letter to the editor. Instead, they only attempt to discredit the author of the letter and the College Democrats. Is Kevin Coughlin trying to hide the fact that he simply cannot answer to allegations that he is ineffective and unresponsive to the real needs of the student body?

To illustrate my point, I would like to offer a few examples. First, Coughlin has been in office two years, and only now has there been a resolution to increase accessibility for the physically challenged. Next, his defenders claim he has done more to improve city-University relations than anyone, yet he was never at the forefront of the student movement following the East Merry/Frazer incidents. Rather, he waited to see what student reactions would be and only then became involved.

In addition, although he is the student representative, not the administration's voice on campus, Kevin seems to assume that speaking with the administration officials, rather than students, is his role. Finally, the faculty-course evaluation booklet has been proclaimed a flop by The BG News, faculty, students and even some members of USG — yet Coughlin still claims it is a major accomplishment.

It should be obvious that Kevin is satisfied with half-efforts and overblown rhetoric. Don't be fooled by Mr. Coughlin and his cronies — Bowling Green students deserve more.

Coughlin, 'cronies' should be voted out

Editor, The News:
I am a junior here at Bowling Green State University, and I have watched the ascent to power of Kevin Coughlin with growing disgust until now. I feel, after two years of childish backstabbing and mindless rhetoric, someone should finally set the record straight.

Mr. Coughlin, you are the student body president. This means you are the liaison between the students and the faculty of this University. This does not mean that in faculty senate meetings, where you were granted a seat, you have the right to degrade the body's political process because it suits you. You are the voice of the students, not an individual on a power trip.

Why is it that Mr. Coughlin (along with Ms. Schnetzer) are the only student leaders who receive financial compensation? The president of the University Activities Organization does not receive anything, the co-chairs of the Orientation Board do not receive anything, the president of the Undergraduate Alumni Association does not receive anything and the presidents of both Panhellenic Council and Interfraternity Council do not receive any compensation. Yet, Mr. Coughlin feels he needs more.

And finally the ROTC. By not condemning their existence on campus, you are allowing the discriminatory practices of the United States military to continue. Your condemnation would not have affected them on this campus in any way, but you would have shown a spine in your refusal to accept the existence of willful discrimination in Bowling Green.

I truly hope two years of this Coughlin political machine are enough, and the student body of this fine University begins to take an active stand against Mr. Coughlin and all of his cronies. When USG elections take place in the spring, perhaps we should pay attention not to who has the best campaign posters, but who has the best candidate.

The 'King's' record needs evaluating

Editor, The News:
Once upon a time, long, long ago in a land far away there lived a king — King Coughlin. King Coughlin was a fair king, always allowing his subjects to voice their opinions and offer ideas on how to make USG-ville a better place to live. All of this changed drastically one day when a loyal subject suggested he had a different way to approach a problem, and maybe the King should allow someone else a chance to guide USG-ville into the future. Upon hearing this remark the King huffed, "There is no place for partisanship or dissenting opinions in this land, and I will not tolerate it anymore."

It's funny how history has a way of repeating itself. The same thing is happening in our merry little land today. King Coughlin — excuse me — President Coughlin has demonstrated his iron-fisted control over the supposedly representative Undergraduate Student Government on numerous occasions. In his omnipotent wisdom he appointed an on-campus student to represent an off-campus district. In another case he appointed the roommate of a senator to serve as a member of the elected body without ever allowing this decision to be discussed before our semi-representative student government. President Coughlin has also proclaimed there is no place for partisanship in USG but has done nothing to remedy the partisan imbalance that takes place during his current reign.

I would urge every student interested (all 20 or 30 of you) to look more closely at the president's record. Ask yourself, is this the person that should be representing you? It is obvious this is one president that has not done his political science homework. A government without equal and fair representation is not a democracy but a dictatorship.

USG scolded for neglect of rights

Editor, The News:
The Undergraduate Student Government, led by President Kevin Coughlin, should be congratulated. It has truly become the most regressive of representative bodies anywhere. USG has managed to take discrimination to a new level, and seems proud of its narrow, limited scope.

Despite the best efforts of Senator Kevin Turner and others, the general assembly recently defeated a resolution that would have demanded that ROTC support the rights of homosexuals to participate in the ROTC program and other military related exercises. Although the University constitution specifically states students may not be discriminated against, the majority of USG senators voted against Turner's bill — which would have only reaffirmed what the Constitution states.

It is a shame the USG senators and leadership cannot find it within themselves to protect the rights of every student. The members of USG obviously need to be reminded that they were elected to represent all students, not just a select few homophobes. How very sad it is not all USG members realize this fact.

It is time the members of the University community take those senators who voted against this resolution to task. If certain USG representatives do not feel it is their duty to protect the rights of homosexual University students, then who is to say those same senators will not find some other group they feel should be discriminated against. As for President Coughlin, perhaps his suit is a little stiff with starch. What kind of leader does not take a stand against discrimination? Answer: a very, very, very poor one.

Kathren Brown,
history graduate student,

Coughlin needs to clarify his views

Editor, The News:
I am not a College Democrat. I am not a College Republican. In fact, I am not representing anyone in this letter but myself — and any other concerned University student who may agree with this letter.

I am concerned about the things I have been reading and hearing on campus regarding Undergraduate Student Government President Kevin Coughlin. And yes, I realize not everything I read and hear is true, which is why I am writing this letter. I have several questions that need answering.

I have seen numerous letters to the editor arguing that Kevin is sincere and unbiased or that he is insincere and biased. Which is it? Jason Jackson, who wrote a letter supporting Kevin, was a USG senator earlier this year — until Kevin gave him a position as his administrative assistant. (Jason neglected to mention this in his letter.) Jason also mentioned "the accomplishments of the Coughlin Team have been great in number." Who is the "Coughlin Team?" USG? USG cabinet? A group of Kevin's puppet senators? Jason and Kevin? Who? If it is anyone but USG as a whole, the statement is false, because Kevin could do nothing without the work of USG cabinet and senators. I read another letter to the editor by Bradley Dieckmann. That makes two letters supporting Kevin — both written by freshmen. How can freshmen understand what Kevin has or has not done when they have not even been at the University for a semester?

Kevin has done some good things. So did President Nixon. But maybe that isn't a fair comparison. Or is it?

Basically, I'm hearing prosecution and defense from everyone but the person being attacked. Kevin, what are YOUR thoughts? If you can defend yourself, well great! If you cannot, then I would suggest you not consider running for another term. Kevin, write a letter to the editor and let the students know your own answers.

Parish Mass offers 'spirit'

by Kim Fencle
writer

Christmas is a time for people to join together in celebration with those closest to them. The pre-Christmas Candlelight Mass on Dec. 16 is one opportunity for students to gather together before going their separate ways for Christmas break.

Nearly 2,000 people, mostly students, are expected to attend St. Thomas More's annual event. "The number in attendance is overwhelming," said Rev. Herb Weber of St. Thomas More Parish.

"There is an enthusiasm and warm spirit in the air that you can't resist," he added.

The theme of this year's celebration is "from darkness to light," Weber said. The mass will begin in darkness, and the lights gradually come on throughout the ceremony.

A committee of college students has been working with members of the parish staff to plan this celebration.

Bridget Szanti, a junior biology major is a member of the Liturgy of the Word Committee.

"We're trying to do things different from last year," Szanti said.

More than 50 students are involved in this year's event. Planning for the Mass involves arranging music, decorations and the liturgy, Szanti said.

A large music group, which will use some original music as well as some traditional advent and Christmas songs, is a vital part of the festivities. Both choir and instrumental selections incorporate the piano, violin, guitar and drums, Weber said.

In addition, the pageantry incorporates the use of candles, processions and interpretive movements. The liturgical dance, performed by 12 students, will be an interpretive dance of "Emmanuel," Weber said.

Decorations for this annual event include banners, candles and Christmas trees. A huge mosaic banner made by the students is also used each year for this event, Weber said.

This special Mass began about 10 years ago at midnight on the Saturday night before students left the University for Christmas break. Quickly, the crowd grew so large that a bigger site had to be found.

This will be the eighth year the mass will be presented in the Lenhart Ballroom.

"I think for many students, they want to have a Christmas celebration with people who are close to them," Weber said. "Some students make it their Christmas celebration."

The annual event is a Catholic Mass, although the crowd usually contains various religions.

"It's something to bring everyone together before exams," Szanti said. "Everyone should feel welcome."

The doors will open at 7:30 p.m. before the celebration begins at 8 p.m.

The U.S. government said they did not know anything about the invasion until it happened; however, Pam believes this is a lie.

"If they can see an ant [with their telephoto lens], why can't they see troops going over [border] lines," she said.

"My personal feeling is they knew about this and sacrificed Kuwait," she said.

Pam is not involved in any support groups around Bowling Green, because most of the people in the groups are families of American soldiers.

"They have different situations," Pam said.

However, she is involved in a national organization called Citizens for a Free Kuwait — which may be the reason she has been receiving threats.

She has received hang-up calls and was once threatened to stop her connections with Kuwait.

"The American voice on the phone told me if I enjoy my health, I better stop my involvement with Kuwait," Pam said.

Maurer of Greenbriar Inc. However, Maurer did not reach a conclusion.

Bakies also said Doug Valentine of Preferred Properties was not interested at this time in changing his lease.

Village Green Apartment officials also had not yet responded.

Undergraduate Student Government urges students to boycott these rental agencies if they do not agree to adopt the standardized lease.

The standard lease will be put into use for the fall 1991-1992 school year, said Bakies.

The need to include Bowling

The caller knows when Pam goes to work and what time she arrives home.

"I'm sure [the caller] is watching," she said.

Harassing phone calls are not the only threats Pam has received.

When Pam's car was towed to a mechanic after she had trouble starting it, the mechanic told her the brake and accelerator cables had been deliberately cut.

The mechanic said the split cables had to be deliberate, because it takes a special tool to cut them, she said. Although Hussein's recent release of more than 200 hostages have some Americans thinking he is backing down, Pam thinks it is just another part of his game.

The United Nations has given him a January 15 deadline before military action will be taken, and he is probably hoping they will give him more time since he released the hostages, she said.

Through the months, Pam has heard many rumors about what is happening in Kuwait, but she does not know what to believe or what not to believe.

On Oct. 17, Pam received a message her husband was inter-

However, since then Pam heard this is just a rumor.

Early Wednesday morning, Pam received a call from her niece who was housesitting for Pam while she was working at the hospital.

An unidentified man calling from Baghdad said Abdullah was "alive and well" and he wanted Pam to get in contact with him because he had a message for her from her husband.

As soon as Pam was informed about the phone call, several of her co-workers began trying to reach Baghdad — but were unsuccessful.

Since 3 a.m. Wednesday, Pam has repeatedly tried to reach the caller, but all lines have been busy.

Pam is not only worried about her husband and his family, but also several of her friends still living in Kuwait.

"I have heard rumors [that some of my friends] were killed and I believe some of these rumors are true," she said.

"Because this is a small town, and the families know each other, favors have a tendency to occur and lighter punishments are applied [to high school and junior high school students]."

"They are just as guilty if a crime is committed as college students," he added.

the education community and behind the scenes by White House Chief of Staff John Sununu.

Cavazos' critics had considered him an inadequate salesman for the administration's policies, who never mastered television skills.

"Basically, it would be hard to tell what would have been different if we hadn't had a secretary of education at all during this period of time," said long-time critic Albert Shanker, president of the American Federation of Teachers. "I hope they don't keep the position vacant for another three years."

But Keith Geiger, president of the National Education Association, said Cavazos "proved to be a decent man with the interest of America's children at heart."

The resignation is effective Saturday, with Deputy Education Secretary Ted Sanders serving as acting head of the department.

Sources said that Sanders has been lobbying for Cavazos' position. Also considered to be possible successors are Lynne Cheney, chairman of the National Endowment for the Humanities; former New Jersey Gov. Thomas Kean; and Rep. Patricia Sakki, a former schoolteacher who lost her November bid to unseat Sen. Daniel Akaka, D-Hawaii.

Cavazos, whose father was a cattle foreman at the King Ranch in Texas, earned a bachelor's degree in zoology and a master's degree in cytology at Texas Technological College, which later became Texas Tech University. He received a doctorate in physiology from Iowa State University in 1954.

Cavazos was president of Texas Tech when he became the first Hispanic Cabinet official in the waning days of the Reagan administration. Bush kept him in the job.

were estimated to be $32,340 for employees and about $270,000 for the screening exams. However, these projections were made with the expectation that only 25 percent of University employees and spouses would take advantage of the program.

"In the long run, this investment would be worth the money because the total amount spent on this program would be less, not more than the money spent by University insurance," Kaplan said.

Kaplan admitted obtaining the initial funds could be difficult.

Whether the University pays for the medical exams or if the individual does is irrelevant, he said, because these preventive measures could lead to longer lives.

Of course, people are more likely to have these exams if someone else is paying, he said.

"This is not a question of whether it will save [employees] money, but will it save their health?" he said.

Voll looking for correct combinations on offense

by Jamie Joss
sports writer

Discovering the right combinations on the floor is a part of all basketball coaching responsibilities in the early part of the season.

This is especially true for BG head coach Fran Voll who is trying to develop the best possible unit after losing three starters from last season.

Voll

Voll will get yet another opportunity to find that unit and correct some of the problems the Falcon women's basketball team has been experiencing in two-straight losses to North Carolina and Michigan State, in a battle with Wisconsin-Green Bay Phoenix tonight at 8 p.m.

"We need to follow our shots and work on the total offensive end," Voll said. "We can't have breakdowns."

BG enters the game with a 3-3 record including wins over Dayton, Illinois State, and Seton Hall. The Falcon losses have come at the hands of two Big Ten opponents Michigan and MSU, and ACC opponent UNC.

UWGB enters the game with a respectable 4-2 record, including wins over Wisconsin, Villanova, and Northern Iowa and their only losses coming to Illinois and Mid-American Conference foe Miami.

The Phoenix finished third in the North Star Conference last season with a 7-5 record, 16-13 overall.

"The North Star is a quality conference and has two perennial powerhouses in DePaul and Northern Illinois," Voll said.

Head coach Carol Hammerle enters her 18th season for UWGB which returns four starters and 11 letterwinners.

Of the returning starters, guard Sandra Baerwald leads the team in scoring with 14.8 points per game and 4.2 rebounds per game.

The Phoenix are getting early dividends from freshman forward Christi Burden (5-10) and sophomore center Lisa Wegner (6-2), averaging in double figures in points per game, 12.3 and 11.5 respectively.

UWGB is shooting 49.5 percent from the field and is lighting it up at a 58.3 percent clip from three-point land.

Voll believes defense and quickness are two major strengths of the Phoenix.

"They are a very good defensive team, they play hard and come right at you," Voll said. "They also have an awfully tough half-court game and they move really well and use a lot of motion in their offense."

In addition to having four quality starters returning, UWGB has 6-3 freshman Kimberly Wood coming off the bench averaging 7.2 points and 4.3 rebounds.

FALCON NOTES: The Falcons will look to sophomore forward Andrea Nordmann (12.6 ppg and 7.4 rpg) and leading scorer senior guard Wanda Lyle (15.0 ppg, 4.6 rpg, and 3.6 assists per game) to lead the efforts over the Phoenix.

Senior forward Traci Gorman broke out of a slump against Michigan State Tuesday hitting eight of 12 shots from the field, finishing with 17 points and BG will need junior starting guard Cathy Koch to do the same, after a night she would rather forget, hitting only one of 12 shots against MSU.

Junior Katie McNulty has been filling her role very well and has increased her averages to 6.4 ppg and 7.2 rpg.

Heather Finrock has been providing quality bench play for the Falcons averaging 8.8 points and 5.6 rebounds in 19 minutes per game.

Blackney hires two assistants

Falcon head football coach Gary Blackney announced the addition of the first two assistants to his staff. Blackney, an assistant coach at Ohio State for the last seven seasons, was appointed as Bowling Green's football coach on December 5.

Joining BG's staff is Bob Ligasheky and Paul Ferraro.

Ligasheky, who will be coaching the outside linebackers, comes to Bowling Green from Kent State where he coached the same position. He also spent two seasons at Arizona State, where he helped the Sun Devils to bowl berths both times, including the 1986 Rose Bowl.

Ferraro will be the defensive coordinator at BG while also coaching the inside linebackers. Last year he was at Ohio University. He has also held jobs at Villanova, Dartmouth, and Catholic University.

Editor, The News;

Chris Miller's commentary in Tuesday's BG News about the inconsistent fan support for the Falcon basketball team was, unfortunately, correct.

I was the fan in the front row on Saturday that Miller referred to in his commentary. I've been at every home Falcon basketball game since the spring of 1989 and the support for the team has never been good. There are some fans who attend every game and cheer for the team but this team deserves much more than the support it is getting. Two seasons ago the Falcons showed some promise, but they lost some close games at home. Last season the team came on strong and surprised some teams, but again it lost some close games it could have won.

This season the Falcons have shown they have everything it takes to win a MAC championship except one thing. The team has the talent, experience, speed, desire, coaching, and the right system matched with the right players. The one thing they lack is consistent fan support. With good, loud fans a team wins those close games at home the Falcons have lost the last two seasons. A large, enthusiastic crowd can disrupt the flow of a visiting team and also pump up the home team. A player feels the intensity of the crowd and feels his adrenaline flowing. Then he hits that three-point shot, gets that crucial rebound, comes up with a steal, a blocked shot, or finishes the break with a thunderous dunk. Ask coach Larranaga about what crowd support does for the Falcons. Or ask Clinton Venable or Joe Moore if they think the crowd helps them. Better yet, give Michigan State a call and see if they think 4,000 screaming Falcon Fanatics hindered their play.

A basketball fan could not ask for a better place to watch a game than Anderson Arena. The student seats are right on the floor close to the action. There really aren't any bad seats and it can be very loud when the crowd is screaming its support. The athletic band is terrific and the cheerleaders, Freddie and Frieda are always trying to get the fans into the game.

So there you have it, a good team hungry for your support, an arena tailor made to watch a game in, and good enthusiasm from the band and cheerleaders. Now it's up to you. Let's make Anderson Arena the "House that Roars" again for the rest of the season. The next home game after break is Jan. 16. I'll be there in the front row, face painted orange and brown looking for you. I hope to see you there.

Two Falcons chosen among elite

by Charles Toll
sports editor

Ken Klee and Brett Harkins will dress in different uniforms next week.

No, neither player is transferring to another school, nor did either sign a professional contract. Instead, both will substitute their brown and orange jerseys for the red, white and blue of the USA in international competition.

Klee will break from Bowling Green for three weeks to play in the 19-year-old-and-under World Junior Tournament in Saskatoon, Sask.

Countries for the eight team round-robin tournament starting Dec. 26 and concluding Jan. 4, include international powers Russia, Canada, Czechoslovakia and Sweden.

Meanwhile, Harkins will play for Team USA in a two game Select Series against the U.S.S.R.'s "Dynamo Riga" team on Tuesday and Wednesday in Orlando, Fla.

Both tournaments are considered training ground for the 1992 U.S. Olympic team which should be picked by USA Hockey next summer.

"They're both solid prospects and they're getting better all the time," BG head coach Jerry York said. "It is a really positive thing for them and it is really positive for our university."

Most players were selected by the USA Hockey committee based on their performance in the U.S. Olympic Festival in Colorado Springs, Co. last August. Others, who didn't attend the festival, were chosen for their play this year alone.

Klee and Harkins both said participating in the festival increased their chances of playing these holiday tournaments. Klee skated for the South, while Harkins played for the East.

Klee, who will fly to Colorado to practice for a week, said he is optimistic about the U.S. team's chances against other teams who have played together longer.

"Everyone always expects the U.S. to finish near the bottom, but we have a really good coach and a lot of good players," said Klee, who won't turn 20 until April 24.

"When you get that many quality players together, it won't take long for us to blend together."

Kalamazoo Wings' assistant coach Kevin Costantine will direct a cast that includes four other Central Collegiate Hockey Association players, including Michigan State's Rob Woodward.

After a decent freshman season, Klee has turned into one of the best scoring defensemen in the CCHA as a sophomore. He is tied for second in the league with 20 assists, after compiling only five assists last season.

"He's really coming hard," York said. "Last year, you could see it a little bit, but this year he's coming on so strong. He's had a great year."

Despite missing possibly three to four games, Klee said he's excited to get the opportunity to compete against some of the world's best.

"When you get to this stage in hockey where your so close to the professional level, you really like to get the chance to move on," Klee, whose rights are owned by the Washington Capitals, said.

"I'll miss our Christmas tournament, which I'm not too happy about, but it is a big opportunity for me and for Bowling Green hockey."

From his center position, Harkins ranks first on the team and third in the league with 30 points (11 goals, 19-assists). Harkins, who led St. Edwards of Lakewood, O., to the state hockey title in 1986, said he's excited about the chance he may have to play on the U.S. Olympic team.

"It's something I'm really shooting for," said Harkins, who is not expected to miss any games.

"They're supposed to pick the Olympic team next summer. This tournament should be a boost and hopefully, I'll be invited back to the sports festival."

Harkins said he will leave for Detroit immediately following Saturday night's game at Michigan State. He will then fly to Orlando, Fla. Sunday morning before practicing with the team that evening and then again Monday.

Six other CCHA players were selected to the squad that is coached by Minnesota Duluth's Mike Sertich. Sertich was the losing coach when BG won the National Championship in 1984.

The conference's leading scorer Lake Superior's Jimmy Dowd (10-24-34) and teammate Jeff Napierala (11-10-21) help give the U.S. a team capable of nailing a few red lighters.

"From the guys we have on the roster, I think we'll be all right," said Harkins, who was drafted by the New York Islanders in 1989.

"We're just going to throw everything together for two practices and then play them."

While the experience might lead to a spot on the Olympic roster, both players can expect to be a little spent by the time its done.

Harkins, whose parents Donald and Sandee will make the two-and-one-half hour drive from their home in St. Petersburg, Fla. to watch him play, said the scheduling worked out well.

"It's good because I wasn't planning on going home for Christmas. Now I'll get to see them for a few days," Harkins said.

Klee won't be as fortunate. His family lives in Kansas City, nowhere near Saskatoon.

Lendl leads the final eight at Grand Slam

MUNICH, Germany (AP) — Ivan Lendl swept into the second round of the Grand Slam Cup on Wednesday, while David Wheaton, Brad Gilbert and Aaron Krickstein also won to put five Americans among the final eight.

Lendl, seeded second in the $6 million event, beat Sweden's Christian Bergstrom 6-4, 6-0 and is the highest-seeded player remaining in the world's richest tennis tournament. On Tuesday, top-seeded Stefan Edberg was upset by Michael Chang.

Wheaton gained the only break of the match in the eighth game of the third set to outlast Yannick Noah of France 7-6 (7-2) 6-7 (5-7), 6-3. Gilbert rallied to beat Jonas Svensson of Sweden 2-6, 6-3, 6-4, and Krickstein beat Gomez, the third seed, 6-3, 6-4.

U.S. Open champ, Pete Sampras, who beat Andrei Cherkasov, also won on Tuesday, as did France's Henri Leconte and Yugoslavia's Goran Ivanisevic.

Krickstein broke Gomez in the second game of the first set and in the third game of the second. He never faced a break point.
